(Masdar City) will run entirely on renewable energy sources. It is built on an advanced energy (grid) which monitors exactly how much electricity is being used by every outlet in the complex. In order to reduce its carbon footprint, (Masdar City will be a car-free zone, designed to be pedestrian and cycle-friendly.)

Energy will be provided by solar power and wind farms, and there are also plans to build the world's largest hydrogen plant. Biological waste will be used as an energy source too, and industrial waste will be recycled.

The current residents of Masdar City are all students at the Masdar Institute of Science and Technology. (a university whose students are fully committed to finding solutions to the world's energy problems.)

While the project has the support of many global, environmental and conservation organisations, there is some criticism of it. It is felt that, instead of building an artificial sustainable city, sustainability should be made a priority of existing cities.

Interviewer: Did you make any mistakes on that visit?

Mr Ghanem: 'Yes! Chinese business people will always ask about a company's successes in the past. However, because I worked for a new company, I could not talk about its track record. We did not do any business deals on that first trip.'

Interviewer: What advice can you give to people wanting to do business in China?

Mr Ghanem: 'Before I visit a company, I send recommendations from previous clients. I also send my business card with my job position and qualifications translated into Chinese.'

Interviewer: Can you tell us about your last meeting in China?

Mr Ghanem: 'Of course, I arrived on time. You must not arrive late, as this shows disrespect. Then, when I met (the company director) I shook hands with him gently.
